

Prof. Jeroen van Kampen

Jeroen van Kampen, MD, PhD, is an experienced consultant clinical microbiologist at the department of Viroscience of the Erasmus MC, Rotterdam, The Netherlands. His clinical work focuses on the management of viral infections in immunocompromised patients with an emphasis on antiviral treatment and drug resistance. In addition, he provides expert consultations for the various reference centers of the department of Viroscience (e.g. the viral hemorrhagic fever reference center) and is member of various national teams such as the expert team for treatment of COVID-19 of the Dutch Federation of Medical Specialists. His research projects focus on translational and clinical virology of treatment of viral infections.